

RUSSIA DISPUTES CONTRACT.

Tennessee Copper Hard Hit by Fire in Explosives Plant. The recent weakness of Tennessee Copper on the Stock Exchange has been due to a controversy between the company's officials and the Russian Government over the inability of the corporation to carry out the contracts for the delivery of a large amount of trinitrotoluol, one of the by-products of the corporation, used in the making of explosives.

Last year the Russian Government advanced the corporation $1,500,000 against the contract. Shortly after this the trinitrotoluol plant of the company near Copper Hill, Tenn., burned down. It is now being reconstructed, but the Russian authorities are demanding a return of their money and threaten to sue for its recovery.

He said he intended to preserve an attitude of strict neutrality, but wanted it understood he was not going to guarantee interest on any of the bonds of matrimony.
